

ALL QUIET AT MUKDEN TODAY

Japanese and Russians Are Resting, After Strenuous Work of the Past Week.

MUKDEN WILL BE ABANDONED SOON

Russians Are Sending Their Baggage and Wounded to the Rear by Train and Wagon as Fast as Possible.

(Special by Scripps-Mellae.)

Mukden, Sept. 10.—Ordinary camp life has set in at Mukden. Quiet prevails today along the whole front of the immense armies which are lined up opposite each other. The Japanese advance at the southeast has stopped and the Russian baggage trains are still running without interruption. Thousands of wounded have been sent northward but the Red Cross society is still working night and day to relieve the most seriously injured. The inactivity of the Japanese is due to the steepness of the mountain by which they must ascend to enter the city. The rains have ceased and the roads are drying up rapidly. Kuropatkin is somewhere in the neighborhood of Tlopana and the Russian army is making all plans to evacuate Mukden for Harbin. This is, however, not officially announced although the civilian officers have left the city and everything points to Harbin being the winter quarters of the army. From Chefoo comes the word that during the past few days the Japanese have lost fifteen thousand men in their assaults upon Port Arthur. A Tokyo dispatch announces that at the request of the Japanese Emperor Fushimi will leave for the United States on board the Manchuria. He will make a tour of the country. He was in command of the Japanese division at the battle of "Nashan Heights."

Leave Kuropatkin.
Siu Min Tun, Sept. 10.—The Russians have apparently decided to abandon Mukden and the movement of the main army toward Tie Pass has already begun. The advance guard having arrived at Fubo on its way north. Reports are coming in which indicate continued and increasing activity on the part of the Chinese, who are doing everything possible to hinder the Russian retreat. It is hinted that they are acting under the direction of the Japanese, but whether this is true or not cannot be learned.

The extent of the losses on both sides during the fighting around Liaoyang is slowly coming to light and it is expected that when all reports are in the figures will be very close to 60,000 men, and that although in the first two days fighting the heaviest losses were sustained by the Japanese, the Russians suffered an equally heavy loss in the later fighting and during the retreat from Liaoyang to Mukden.

A great deal of anxiety is felt in some quarters for the safety of the rear guard under General Meyerdorff, which some reports say has been cut off and captured by the Japanese. This, however, is denied by the Russians, who say the command has reached Paila-Pu about three miles. The movements of General Kuropatkin's army are enveloped in mystery, and it is intimated that a large part of his forces are now moving to flank the retreating Russians above Mukden, as the Japanese do not wish to let the Russians reach Tie Pass before giving battle, because at that place they would be in a position from which it would be extremely difficult to dislodge them, except by means of a protracted siege, which, while it would undoubtedly result in a victory for the Japanese, would not answer their purpose as well as a decisive battle at the present time, even at the sacrifice of several thousand men.

Find Some Consolation.
St. Petersburg, Sept. 10.—The general staff and the people in general find some consolation in the announcement that what is left of the Russian army under Gen. Kuropatkin is for the present safe in Mukden. The consolation, however, is found mostly in the report, which says that the forces of Oyama, worn out from exertion and hunger, have halted for a rest and that the pursuit of Kuropatkin has temporarily been abandoned.

While there is nothing official to show that the Russians are safe and that the Japanese have suspended their daring and relentless pursuit, considerable credence is given the report.

A dispatch has been received from Viceroy Alexieff announcing that the railroad and telegraph line between Harbin and Mukden are both uninterrupted, while Lieut. Gen. Sakharoff telegraphs that there was no fighting during Sept. 8.

Outposts Still Fighting.
Official news from the front confirms the reports from Mukden that the Japanese outposts are still in contact with the Russians. The latter continue to hold Sinsintsin, sixty-six miles east of Mukden, and Russian cavalry is operating over a wide area east of Mukden to prevent a Japanese column from slipping through and making its way north.

The reports that six more army corps are to be mobilized are untrue. Only two corps are mobilizing and at present there would be no object in mobilizing more than the railroad is able to transport. The present facilities permit the transportation of a little over one corps each month, but this is expected to be increased with the completion of the circum-Baltic railroad, which Prince Ilkoff, minister of railroads, who is supervising the work, reports is expected to commence operations within a few days.

Men Sleep in the Mud.
Some descriptions of the scenes along the line of retreat from Liaoyang are almost incredible. They tell how the men lay down in the mud and slept in a dreaching rain and without shelter.

It is evident that the last determined effort of the Japanese to bring Kuropatkin to bay was made on Tuesday, but the Russian commander in chief faced about and two corps with artillery beat off the Japanese, while the remainder of the troops continued the march to Mukden. After that the Japanese could only hang on to the flanks and try to shell the retreating columns from the hills.

The detailed statement of Russian losses is awaited with intense interest. The general expectation is that the losses will approximate 20,000, as against 30,000 for the Japanese.

Japanese Bury Enemy's Dead.
The work of burying the dead was left to the Japanese, who were forced to attempt the task as a matter of self-preservation, but it was almost impossible. The awful rains have handicapped the work of cremation, on which the Japanese relied, and only shallow trench burials were possible under the circumstances. Not only is this work one of the greatest difficulty, but it is almost valueless from a sanitary point of view, the storms undoing it soon after it is accomplished. The care of the wounded has taxed the hospitals to the utmost.

Discuss Liao-Yang Battle.
Now that the battle of Liao-Yang belongs within the domain of history, officers of the general staff are more disposed to discuss some of the circumstances of the fight, although they still lack specific information.

Now we begin to understand why the czar of all the Russians has a wild desire to go to the front

MILWAUKEE NOW IN THE PACIFIC

New Cruiser Launched at San Francisco with Due Honors This Morning.

(Special by Scripps-Mellae.)
San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 10.—The protected cruiser Milwaukee was launched at eleven thirty this morning in the presence of thousands. A large number of Wisconsin Knights Templars and a delegation from Milwaukee were present. Miss Janet Mitchell of Milwaukee christened the vessel. Miss Lily Jeffrey of this city touched the button that freed the ship. The Milwaukee is of 9,700 tons displacement and is a sister ship of the Charleston and St. Louis and will make twenty-two knots an hour.

Fingers So Badly Crushed That One of Them Had to Be Amputated.
While at work in the shops of the Rock River Machine Co. yesterday Nelson Hanson had his left hand caught in a cog wheel and his fingers were so badly crushed that it was found necessary to amputate one of them. Dr. McCarthy attended to the injuries. Mr. Hanson lives on South Franklin street.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES

A slight earthquake shock was felt at Riverside, Cal.

STRIKE BREAKERS LEAVING CHICAGO

By Monday It Is Expected That the Greater Portion Will Have Left the Yards.

(Special by Scripps-Mellae.)
Chicago, Ill., Sept. 10.—A thousand and odd employees of the packing houses applied at the stock yards today for their old places in accordance with the action of the unions calling off the strike. Fearing a clash between the negro strike-breakers, many of whom are armed, and the union men, the police were massed at the yards in order to maintain order among the thousand elbowing workers. In some instances the returning unionists were jeered by the strike-breakers but no conflicts took place. At the various plants men were taken back slowly. The members of the sheep butchers' union, numbering three thousand, assert that all must be taken back or none; the teamsters have assumed the same attitude. In case the packers ignore these demands the two unions will probably continue the strike.

At Omaha.
Omaha, Neb., Sept. 10.—About eight hundred strikers have been given places in the packing houses this morning. More will be taken back when the stock receipts increase. The strike-breakers are leaving the plants in large numbers. Few skilled workmen were given work this morning on account of the small supply of stock, but it is expected many will be re-employed on Monday. The laborers fared better, as fully forty-five hundred are being employed. About two thousand strike breakers left the yards on early trains. It is estimated Monday morning will find not more than forty per cent of the strike-breakers in the South side yards.

MANY GRADUATES GO TO MADISON

How the Preliminary Work of Registration Is Carried Out at the University.
A number of graduates of the Janesville high school will enter the state university at Madison this fall. The state school in the Capital city will open two weeks hence and candidates for admission to the walks of higher education are getting their credentials in readiness for matriculation. Each prospective student applies for a blank at the office of the university registrar and makes out the part of it that refers to his parentage, age, nationality and other personal facts. The blank is then submitted to the head of the high school at which the candidate for admission was prepared for the university and he fills out the facts of the student's preparatory work.

VAN HISE WILL NOT BE BLUFFED

President of the University Says No Hazing Goes This Year Among Students

(Special by Scripps-Mellae.)
Madison, Wis., Sept. 10.—President Charles R. Van Hise of the University of Wisconsin said in an interview yesterday that he was determined that the good conduct of the university community should not be lax and that the university should not be disgraced through hazing. He said that his attitude toward this practice would be as it always has, that it was out of place in the university and should not be tolerated. He did not say just what preparations will be made to govern the hazers, but intimated strongly that expulsion would be the remedy for violent antics this fall.

PARKER WILL NOT MANAGE FIGHTING

Democratic Nominee for President Says He Is Satisfied with Committee.

(Special by Scripps-Mellae.)
Esopus, Sept. 10.—Judge Parker has denied he is going to New York to take personal charge of the campaign. He says he is gratified at the work of the national and state committees.

STEAMER SINKS—SUSPECTED JAPANESE MUNITIONS ABOARD

(Special by Scripps-Mellae.)
Highland Light, Mass., Sept. 10.—The steamer Longfellow from Wilmington, Delaware, sank off here last night. A crew of sixteen were compelled to lay outside the bar all night in small boats. They were brought in by the life savers this morning. The boat sprang a leak. The Longfellow was loaded with explosives. It is said the cargo was intended for the Japanese government.

NEWS OF THE STATE IN BRIEF.

Willis Brown of the Anti-Cigarette league will form a branch of the organization in Baraboo.
Mrs. Peter S. Monk, socially prominent in Racine, was adjudged insane on Friday and sent to the Northern hospital at Oshkosh.
Edward Murphy, claiming Milwaukee as his home, is under arrest in Kenosha for robbing a barber shop near the North-Western depot.
Under a composite agreement of creditors, a settlement of the affairs of James A. Kennard, a Kenosha baker, was reached on Friday.
W. Purnell's hardware store, N. Belland's meat market, and A. M. Muir's shoe store, at Grand Rapids, were damaged $5,000 by fire and water on Friday.

BUYERS THROG TO THE MARKETS

All Reports Indicate Activity in Business with Small Shelf Stock at Present.

END OF BIG STRIKE AIDS TRADE

Resumption of Work in Stock Yards Removes Most Serious Obstacle by Clearing Way for Settlement of Other Troubles.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Dun's weekly review of the features of Chicago trade says:
"Considering the enormous financial loss incurred and the privation caused within the last two months, the decision of the packing house strikers to return to work has removed a most serious obstacle to business."
"This clearing of the industrial atmosphere encourages renewed effort among the manufacturers and it may suggest the early termination of labor controversies which are impeding progress in the production of machinery, woodwork and clothing. Notwithstanding these interferences, the manufacturing situation presents evidence of widening activity. Demand exhibits distinct improvement in the leading departments."

Business in Iron.
"Rail mills secured additional contracts and there are indications that further heavy requirements must soon be provided for. Lower cost has stimulated the buying of wire product and structural forms, while reported ship-building contracts will absorb large tonnage of plates. Deliveries of pig and merchant iron have reached a larger aggregate this week and it is probable that furnace production may have to be increased to meet accumulating needs."

WEARS SHORT DRESSES THOUGH SHE IS A WIDOW

Girl Marries at 13, Loses Husband at 14, While at 15 She Is Preparing to Enter Public School.

Chincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 10.—A romance which had its origin at the cradle fifteen years ago, when Brown-law King, then 9, fell in love with Eva Wilson, a tiny bright-eyed baby, whom he recked to sleep daily and whom he afterward married, came to light with the arrival of the young girl, now a widow, at her mother's home, 1817 Vine street. They lived in Anderson, S. C.

King resided there, too, and when the elopement of the young couple occurred, it was not a surprise, as the marked devotion of King had long been known. Eva Wilson King, wed at 13, a widow at 14, is still in short dresses and brown curls hanging down her back lend beauty to her sweet childish face.

Several months ago her husband, who was employed in a large southern electrical house, died.
Mrs. King expects to enter the public schools in a few months.

Secretary of War Taft does not approve of the plan to have the navy department control the wireless telegraph stations in the United States.
The first two subscribers for Sven Hedin's scientific work on his last Asiatic trip were Japanese—Count Ostani and the Geographic society of Tokyo.

"Disturbance trade sustains the advance noted last week. Conditions have been favorable in the prominent retail branches and merchandise stocks were satisfactorily depleted. Visiting buyers thronged the jobbing markets, bringing gratifying reports as to the business outlook in their locality. It is generally conceded that stocks in the interior are reduced to a low point."

Buying in All Lines.
"Buying has shown more breadth in dress goods, woolsens and household utensils. Oats in volume of bookings was made in cotton goods and notions and also in clothing, although demand for the latter has not yet equaled that of a year ago. In millinery, silk goods and men's furnishings the outside buying remained very active. City purchases of staples ran about the normal average."

"The market for provisions exhibited some irregularity, lard and ribs both making small gains, while pork declined 6 1/2 cents a barrel. Live stock receipts, 203,191, were under the number expected. Choice beefs held steady, but values advanced, for hogs 40 cents a hundredweight and for sheep 40 cents.
"Fallings reported in the Chicago district, number 23, against 26 last week and 25 a year ago."

JANESVILLE LADY AN HEIR TO THE Late T. E. Roessle, of Washington—Mrs. William Ruger—Receives Five Thousand Dollars.

(Special by Scripps-Mellae.)
Washington, Sept. 10.—The will of the late T. E. Roessle, former proprietor of the Arlington hotel, Washington, leaves an estate of $1,350,000. Among the legatees are Mrs. Marion Roessle Ruger, Janesville, Wis., and Mrs. Peter Taylor, Mrs. Ruger was a sister of the late Mr. Roessle, and the Mrs. Taylor referred to is his mother-in-law. Mr. Roessle died in Paris some few weeks ago, his death being announced by cable.

STRANGE STORY OF LARGE RUSSIAN DEFEAT GOES OUT

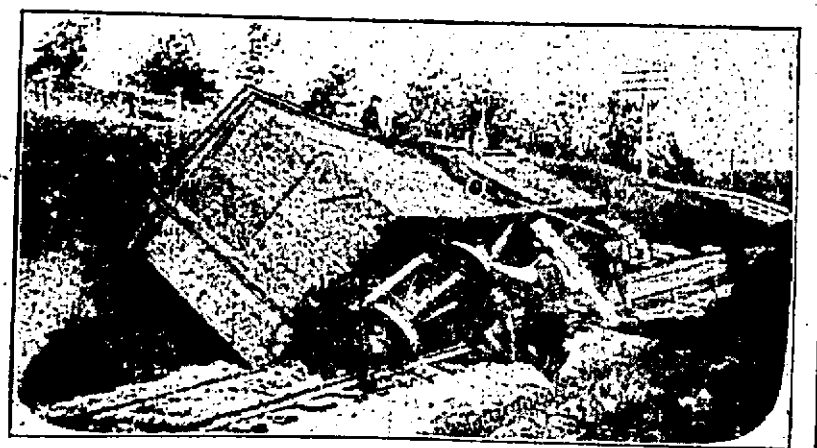

Thirty Thousand Soldiers Said To Have Been Captured in the Retreat to Mukden.

Paris, Sept. 10.—The Petit Parisien has a dispatch from St. Petersburg containing a rumor which is current there to the effect that Gen. Kuropatkin has succeeded in isolating a force of 30,000 of Gen. Kuropatkin's rear guard and that they have surrendered.
Tokio, Sept. 10.—Much rejoicing was caused here yesterday by the report that Gen. Nodzu and Gen. Oku had cut off the Russian rear guard near Mukden and compelled its surrender. There is, however, no official confirmation of the report.
There is another report to the effect that Port Arthur has been captured. This also lacked official confirmation.

Japan Sends More Troops.
It was learned yesterday that troops are leaving the ports of debarkation constantly and that the number of transports engaged in the work is almost as large as when Kuropatkin first started for Korea. It is said that fully 40,000 men have sailed within the last two weeks and that as many more are ready to go as fast as the transports are ready for them. The destination of the men is kept a profound secret, but the best opinion is that they are bound for Dalny and Yinkow, though there is a report current that an army corps, or about 40,000 men, is en route to Possiet bay.

The belief here is that the next great battle of the war will be fought near Thieling pass. The importance of preventing Kuropatkin getting past that point without a fight is recognized and it is believed Marshal Oyama will be able to do it.
Hops Kuropatkin Will Go
Much interest is manifested here in the report from St. Petersburg that Gen. Kuropatkin is to be superseded by Gen. Linewitch and Gen. Kaulbars, and high Japanese army officers do not hesitate to express the hope that the report is true. They hold that Kuropatkin has done as well as any man could have done during the campaign up to this time and are convinced that any change in the command of the Russian army will be to the advantage of Oyama.

Railway Wreck On "Cut-Off" Yesterday

The above cut represents the car of windmills which went off the track on the curve a mile and a half above the city night before last. The accident occurred on the Evansville cutoff and delayed all traffic on the main line until yesterday morning. Trains were sent around by way of Afton in the meantime. The wrecker and crew from Baraboo got the track cleared after unloading the car of its windmill supplies. One strange feature of the whole accident is that no one was hurt and the rest of the train was not injured.

Unless the weather cuts up some queer capers between now and apple picking time, apples will be more plentiful and cheaper this fall than in some years.

There is a large crop on the trees in good condition. Reports show that many new orchards have come into bearing in the west, making a large addition to the total product. In Wisconsin the outlook is for a crop 25 per cent. greater than last year.

Tomatoes are fine this season, many saying that they are much better than they have been for a number of years. They are large and solid and of fine flavor. As tomatoes can be used so many different ways, they are always a good investment.

Catsup, sauces, cold tomato, pickles, preserves and other good winter eatables are made of tomatoes by the good housewife. A good idea when tomatoes are cheap is to can them with plenty of juice for soups. Cream tomato soup is a delicacy, and while the prepared tomato soups are used by many, they are never so good as the genuine article.

This has been a good season for the economical housewife, who is anxious to make her money go a long way. While many varieties of fruits have already been put up, the canning season is only fairly begun.

Fedders and plums are still abundant on the market. Plums can be made up into so many palatable dishes that a great many people covet them and naturally much interest centers in the plum market at present. This fruit is plentiful and cheap this year. Several of the grocers are offering green and hard Bartlett pears for preserving and large quantities are being disposed of.

Potatoes still continue to sell at fairly high prices. This is due largely to the fact that the present supply is dependent altogether on the gardeners, as the farmers' potatoes are not arriving yet. They are not expected until next month. As a usual rule the farmer does not harvest his potatoes until most of his other work is done, or until he can haul them to market as soon as they are dug.

Hazel nuts, wild grapes, hickory nuts and wild plums are a big crop this season. Parties are seen now and then returning with bags of hazel nuts and baskets full of wild grapes and plums from the vicinity of the city. A little later hickory nuts will be ready. Wild grapes are in their prime now and they seem to be so thick that the vines are nearly breaking down.

The present condition of the sugar beet crop is all that can be desired. The last rains have stimulated the root growth and indications point to a large yield.

A movement to buy the new crop of tobacco in the fields has been started recently and contracts for many acres in Rock county are said to have been made. The two working rains which have fallen during the past weeks have put the soil in fine condition for the development of the corn and the tobacco fields. The medium set tobacco which is now being topped is just at the proper stage to obtain a quick growth that invariably brings a fine leaf. All that seems to be needed now is a couple of weeks of warm weather to bring about a completion of crop that fills every requirement of a fine blunder leaf such as the 1900 crop, that the market is still crying for.

FOOTBALL GOSSIP FROM UNIVERSITY

Prospects Very Bright at Madison for a Winning Team This Year.

Madison, Wis.—Assistant Coach Coehms of the University of Wisconsin football team smiled broadly when shown the statement of Coach "Hurricane" Root of Michigan, to the effect that the Badgers have the best chance of winning the western championship this fall. Then the assistant coach, who is in fact the head coach thus far, shook his head and assumed an air of incredulity, saying:

"Yost is a splendid fellow, a great coach, given to jolly. It is true that we will have a large squad of candidates this fall, but the material is not as good as we would like. We have nearly fifty men assured who have had more or less football experience, but only four veterans will be back and most of the best new men are experienced in the high school or small college game that cuts no figure in university company. Of course, we are out for the championship, but we have no prospects such as to warrant any boasts."

However, there are only four places on the Badger team to be filled with new men and for these places there are more than two-score of heavy men who played on the second eleven last season or have been attracted to Wisconsin during the summer. Remp, Bertke and Findlay, who have played on the Badger varsity for two years, will be again at their places at center, left guard and left tackle, respectively. Captain Bush will be at his place at right end and the two leading halfbacks of the Michigan, Minnesota and Chicago games last year, Vanderboom and Wraetz, have sent word that they would shortly join the training camp. Assistant Coach Coehms means Remp, Bertke, Findlay and Bush by his four veterans, not including Vanderboom and Wraetz, who have not yet reported. Fred Long, tackle two years ago, will return. This leaves the positions of left end, quarterback, fullback and right guard to be filled and for these places there is already a scramble among the 15 candidates in the football camp at Lake Monona. Among the most prominent candidates among the new material are De Lappe and Acker, of the University of Colorado, Strongquist, Kuelmsted, Schreiber, Grogan, Schindler, Elbert, Peterson and O'Brien.

Head Coach Curtis is expected to return Monday from his shooting and fishing trip in northern Wisconsin and will then assume charge of the coaching. An additional number of candidates are also expected to report next week and the work, which has thus far been light, will be daily increased.

NO TRACES OF INDIANS FOUND

Janesville Does Not Seem Afflicted in Manner Professor Starr Describes.

Are there any persons in Janesville who feel that they are becoming Indians? If not they will disagree with Prof. Starr, who declares that without intermarriage with Europeans, Americans will become typical Indians.

"The only way to prevent the white inhabitants of the North American continent from becoming typical Indians is to encourage immigration and intermarriage with Europeans," said Professor Starr in lecturing the other day on the origin of the American Indian to his class in ethnology at the World's Fair in St. Louis.

"I believe," he continued, "that the ancestors of the Indians were immigrants from Europe, Asia and Africa who drifted in here and were modified by continental conditions to the red type. We know that happened once it can happen again. Up to a year ago I rather suspected this tendency, and finally I conducted an investigation among the pure blooded Germans who had settled in Pennsylvania. I examined 5,000 German children. Seventy per cent. had dark hair. I also examined 100 pure blooded men in their physical build and facial peculiarities, and they resembled the Indian much more than the European German. Of course, they have not the coppery skin yet. But that will come; each continent has its physical type. That of Europe is white; Africa, black; Asia, yellow; Australia, brown; and America, red. A foreign colony in any continent will in time, as the result of natural selection, tend to conform to the continental type."

The present condition of the sugar beet crop is all that can be desired. The last rains have stimulated the root growth and indications point to a large yield.

HARD AT WORK ON EDGERTON SEWER

Hayes Brothers Have Their Hands Full with the Big Ditch They Are Digging.

The work of laying the main sewer at Edgerton from the city to the river commenced this week by Hayes Bros., who was put on at the beginning. The next week it is intended to increase the number of men sufficiently to rush the workers as fast as practicable. All of the iron piping and about one-half the tiling has been received and the work of laying was commenced at the river end, on the John Call property. Wm. Morrissey has been appointed by the mayor to look after the city's interest and see that all work is done in accordance with the plans and specifications. It is the intention of the contractors to complete the job in about two months.

TOBACCO CROP IS PROGRESSING NOW

Talk of the Existing Conditions of the Year—Outlook Fairly Good.

Another quiet week has prevailed here in the leaf trade, but there is a day of reckoning in store for the dealers in this vicinity and the date of this is set for somewhere near the first of October. Nothing startling is in sight before that time, but when that time does come there will be something up and doing and if the warehouse men do not make up for lost time and money there must be something very wrong somewhere. So far the crop that is being harvested now has made very good progress, and with no symptoms of frosty weather in sight, the greater part of the crop ought to reach the shed in a fair condition; save a few crops that were peppered with hail and laid low by wind in the northern part of the county a few weeks ago.

Very little can yet be determined about the goods of 1903, yet some of the dealers have been a little curious and could not stand the suspense of waiting and have handed down a few boxes and have found the goods thus inspected coming along in fine condition.

A few transactions were closed here during the week just to keep in practice, and were made by Fisher & Fisher of four cars, two of 1901 and two of 1902; L. E. Carlo & Son bought 2000s of 1901-02 and sold 1000s of 1902, and Geo. H. Russell disposed of 1400s of 1902. Mr. Russell returned today from Minnesota after a diligent search for prairie chickens. The Carlo's put in a busy time last week sampling a 6000s lot of low grade goods.

The only visitor from a foreign market to this vicinity for some time is Mr. L. W. of New York City, who was in this city Tuesday.

The movement of buying the new crop in the fields of Crawford and Vernon counties that has been under way for the past three weeks, begins to show some decline. Buyers fresh from the field of operations estimate the amount contracted for at fully three thousand acres, equal to something above 10,000 boxes of packed leaf. This section is growing not far from 8,000 acres the present season, and deducting a thousand or more acres as damaged by frost, and about one-half the average, is accounted for. The efforts of the buyers have been directed towards securing the earliest and most forward crops, and especially the valley tobacco that invariably yields the large, spread, thin leaf that has given to this section its reputation.

So the situation, as expressed by one dealer, is that half the passably good tobacco and about all the fine crops in that district are already under contract. Another evidence of the correctness of this assertion is that buyers who have been riding continuously for some time are returning home all confirming the opinion.

There is considerable late tobacco in that section yet to mature but as prices have been fixed around a 10-cent figure it is no longer an attractive field to operate in. Of the amount sold, local dealers of Vernon county are believed to hold contracts for nearly one-half the amount purchased; others are M. L. Carrier for A. Cohn & Co., C. F. Mahbett for Preitzfeld & Co., H. W. Child, McIntosh Bros., Barnard & Wilder, A. Jensen, Thos. J. Ellington for Eisenlohr Bros., John Bowman for L. W. Scott, Nels Nelson for A. L. McIntosh.

Head Coach Curtis is expected to return Monday from his shooting and fishing trip in northern Wisconsin and will then assume charge of the coaching. An additional number of candidates are also expected to report next week and the work, which has thus far been light, will be daily increased.

ASKS FOR REPORT OF STATE BANKS

Banking Commissioner Bergh Asks for Report on Business Done.

State Commissioner of Banking M. C. Bergh, has mailed to all the state banks in Wisconsin orders to report the condition of the institutions as at the close of September 6.

The work of laying the main sewer at Edgerton from the city to the river commenced this week by Hayes Bros., who was put on at the beginning. The next week it is intended to increase the number of men sufficiently to rush the workers as fast as practicable. All of the iron piping and about one-half the tiling has been received and the work of laying was commenced at the river end, on the John Call property. Wm. Morrissey has been appointed by the mayor to look after the city's interest and see that all work is done in accordance with the plans and specifications. It is the intention of the contractors to complete the job in about two months.

Another quiet week has prevailed here in the leaf trade, but there is a day of reckoning in store for the dealers in this vicinity and the date of this is set for somewhere near the first of October. Nothing startling is in sight before that time, but when that time does come there will be something up and doing and if the warehouse men do not make up for lost time and money there must be something very wrong somewhere.

So far the crop that is being harvested now has made very good progress, and with no symptoms of frosty weather in sight, the greater part of the crop ought to reach the shed in a fair condition; save a few crops that were peppered with hail and laid low by wind in the northern part of the county a few weeks ago.

Very little can yet be determined about the goods of 1903, yet some of the dealers have been a little curious and could not stand the suspense of waiting and have handed down a few boxes and have found the goods thus inspected coming along in fine condition.

A few transactions were closed here during the week just to keep in practice, and were made by Fisher & Fisher of four cars, two of 1901 and two of 1902; L. E. Carlo & Son bought 2000s of 1901-02 and sold 1000s of 1902, and Geo. H. Russell disposed of 1400s of 1902. Mr. Russell returned today from Minnesota after a diligent search for prairie chickens.

The Carlo's put in a busy time last week sampling a 6000s lot of low grade goods.

The only visitor from a foreign market to this vicinity for some time is Mr. L. W. of New York City, who was in this city Tuesday.

The movement of buying the new crop in the fields of Crawford and Vernon counties that has been under way for the past three weeks, begins to show some decline. Buyers fresh from the field of operations estimate the amount contracted for at fully three thousand acres, equal to something above 10,000 boxes of packed leaf.

This section is growing not far from 8,000 acres the present season, and deducting a thousand or more acres as damaged by frost, and about one-half the average, is accounted for. The efforts of the buyers have been directed towards securing the earliest and most forward crops, and especially the valley tobacco that invariably yields the large, spread, thin leaf that has given to this section its reputation.

OLD FOGY HAS MORE COMPLAINTS

THE OLD GENTLEMAN SEES MANY THINGS GOING WRONG.

SUGGESTS SEVERAL CHANGES

Touche Up, the Police and Takes Mayor to Task on Library Board Appointment.

To the Editor:—

So Janesville is not to be pest ridden again with another carnival. Well, I suppose the men who granted permission at first for the shows to come know what they were about but I am sure they did not consult the wish of the citizens outside of a very few before they made their decision. Carnivals always leave a bad taste in the mouths of the city, so to speak. Try as hard as they can to prevent it, grafters, swindlers and petty thieves always swarm to towns holding carnivals. Things are done during the week of supposed fun and merriment that would not otherwise be countenanced. It took Janesville two years to get over the Elks' blow-out and here we are with another. I should have thought that Janesville had enough of shows this summer. Two circuses, a Fourth of July, a Labor Day and other semi-holidays with great jubilation. The streets belong to the people and they, not the advertisers, should be consulted. The only good thing I could see in the whole affair was that we are not asked to contribute to bring the shows here.

Hard at Work.

Work on the great sewers have commenced. Rather it commenced and then stopped. Stopped because it ran foul of the private sewer that runs down First street. I remember when that sewer was laid, it was said then that it had no right there, that is, a legal right and now the work on the city sewers stops because a few people must be accommodated by trouble with their sewer, which is a private institution.

I visited the big steam ditch digger the other day to watch it in its work. It is a wonderful invention. I was informed it did not weight any more than our steam roller and it probably does not, but it is a huge wonderful piece of mechanism just the same. Yesterday afternoon I saw that man labor was being used on Main street in place of the machine, doubtless because of the many service pipes which run to stores and from stores on the east side of the street to the river.

There is a Vacancy.

Perhaps it may be news to many people to know that there is a vacancy on the library board. After a long and useful term of service as a member of this board Judge Charles F. Field's term of appointment expired last spring. Mayor Hutchinson did not reappoint this able man but appointed another who immediately sent a letter to the council stating he could not accept the position offered him. Since then no one has been appointed. It was pure and simple politics, I am so informed, that resulted in the failure of reappointment of Judge Field. Politics have no place in such a position.

If the mayor is wise; if the mayor wants to please the people who patronize the library; if the mayor wants to do what will be for the best interests of the city, he will immediately fill the vacancy by reappointing Judge Field. If he will accept to the position he has so long held with credit and honor, it is no more than due him and should be done at once.

Those Police.

I will not mention any names, it is not necessary, but the city fathers should take in hand, and that right speedily, the reinforcement of the men who enforce the city laws. We have on duty about the city five policemen. One, the chief, is ill and not able to do active work, two are on night duty and one on days, and one on at all times of the day or night. Recently there was occasion to take charge of a man who was not only doing himself an injury but his family. A policeman was called by friends to take charge of the individual and see he was properly cared for until he was in his right mind. Did the policeman do it? No, he merely talked with him and a few hours later was one of three to carry the man by brute force to a place of refuge when he was crazed with drink where he might have led him like a lamb a few hours before. Fights between drunken men do not seem to annoy this same officer except to compel him to move away from their vicinity. He draws his pay. The city pays it and the taxpayers get nothing for the money.

Need Improvements.

Talking of improvements needed in the city, a first class street car service is one of the most essentials just at present. I am the fortunate holder of a nicely embossed piece of paper which shows I hold one share of stock in the present system but thus far I have received nothing but the piece of paper to show I am a capitalist. The present line is just about as poor as it can be in point of cars and track is concerned. In point of efficient motormen or superintendents I have nothing to say but praise. Manager Murphy handles the work as well as any man could and it is the regret of many he has not the facilities in the shape of new cars, new switches, new tracks and other improvements to show what he could do. Manager Murphy is dear to the hearts of all us old soldiers and we old men who live in the past to a certain extent would like to see the line become worthy of its superintendent. Can not something be done? Can not the city fathers manage some way to give us a good service?

OLD FOGY.

Word comes from the members of the Janesville drill team of the M. W. A. that the world's fair authorities found themselves wholly unprepared to care for the Modern Woodmen Foresters' encampment. The world's fair people, notwithstanding the positive official advice from the Woodman commander, assumed that there would not be more than 1,000 to 1,500 of the Woodmen members of the uniformed rank in camp. They made arrangements on this basis. There are now 5,200 in camp and the "Model Encampment," so-called, which has held other national encampments of semi-military secret societies uniformed ranks, has been found totally inadequate to meet the requirements of the Modern Woodmen. The Janesville team, in well placed and has fared very well, but there are others who have not been so fortunate. The commissary was overwhelmed and teams were compelled to seek subsistence from the high-priced concessionaires. The Woodmen found it necessary, owing to the inadequacy of the arrangements, to purchase 500 tents. On Sunday and Monday nights some of the Forester teams were compelled to sleep in the open.

The waitresses employed by the world's fair commissary took advantage of the embarrassing situation in which that department found itself and demanded a 10 per cent. increase in pay. They waited until over 1,000 Foresters were seated at the tables and then made their demand. As 3,000 more Foresters were massed outside awaiting their turn, there was a prompt compliance with the demand of the waitresses.

There was a keen rivalry in the competitive drill contest. The drills were judged by a board of nine regular army officers, assigned to this duty by the war department. The Forester teams from Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri and Indiana are especially well represented in the encampment. There are also large delegations from Ohio, Minnesota, Michigan, Oklahoma and Colorado.

The battalion from Toledo, Ohio, with life and drum corps, easily leads for first money in the battalion contest. Their work is superb and they are proving a great card for the fair. An immense crowd witnessed drill by this battalion given on the Plaza St. Louis yesterday. Thousands of Woodmen are visiting the fair and the encampment grounds are crowded day and night.

The full parade which took place Thursday morning was fully three miles long, the men marching in 16 abreast. In the afternoon Governors Cummins of Iowa, Dockery of Missouri and Halley of Kansas addressed the Woodmen at Festival hall.

FIRST BRIDGE OVER ROCK RIVER

David Merrill of Beloit, Relates a Bit of Ancient History to the Public.

In reading C. Buckley's speech at Home-negah park, I saw a thing or two a little mixed about the first bridge over Rock river, he stating that it was built at Rockton by Steven Mack in 1813. I crossed a bridge over the Rock at Watertown in 1811, and the second bridge on the river was built in Beloit in 1812. The main reason bridges were not built earlier was because Rock river had been declared a navigable stream. Up to 1843 and '44, the settlers desired and expected something would be done by locks or dams to improve the shallow places for large boats. Meetings were held all along the river and plans devised, and even congress was asked to make appropriation for its improvement. But about that time railroads were coming this way and put a quietus on river navigation.

In 1844, in June, a steambot came up the river from St. Louis with groceries to supply the river towns, and the first and only obstruction was the Beloit bridge, which had a wide span near the east end to be opened for boats if necessary. The boat went down the river to Jefferson. When it went down it loaded with flour from Field & Lusk's mill at the east end of School street, Beloit.

That was the wettest and the driest season since the settlement of this section by the whites. It rained nearly every day or night from the 10th of May to the 23d of June. Streams, marshes and roads were full. Then there was no rain but a little shower in September to lay the season until the 7th of November. That season, 1844, I built the second house on the west side of the river at Beloit, the Charles Hansen house, then down this summer, brought Mr. Peet from Milwaukee, to locate Beloit college; began the dam across Rock river; sold out to Hanchett & Lawrence who finished it.

Many Had to Sleep in the Open Air at St. Louis—Restaurant Waiters Struck.

PECK'S BAD BOY

A Most Enjoyable Performance at the Opera House This Evening. There was a very large audience at the opera house last night when Leroy J. French's company appeared in "Peck's Bad Boy." That this play, which has been on the road for twenty years, still has a big hold on the people was fully proven by the large audience that witnessed last evening's performance.

Mr. French has an excellent company and the performance was thoroughly enjoyed by all. While the piece has been changed somewhat from its original form, the leading characters still remain and it is like meeting an old friend to see Max Shultz, the groceryman. A new face in the play is Happy Holligan, and although always happy he is always in trouble.

As presented by Mr. French's company the play is a most enjoyable one, is replete with first-class specialties, and there is hardly a minute from first to last that does not bring a laugh.

"Peck's Bad Boy" will be repeated this evening, tomorrow afternoon and tomorrow evening. Large audiences are assured.—The Daily Telegraph, St. John, N. B., Saturday, July 18, 1903.

EMPHATIC TALK

The Kind That Carries Conviction to Every Janesville Reader.

Conviction must follow such empha- tic proof as is given here. The testimony of Janesville residents should satisfy the most skeptical. Here is a Janesville case. Read it and see if doubt can exist in the face of this evidence.

Mr. E. T. Fish, of 355 Ravine street, proprietor of the Fish Dray Line says: "When I was twenty years of age I fell injuring my back, and ever since that I was troubled more or less with a dull aching pain across the loins. It never laid me up but it was often painful and annoying. Of late years I have gone to a physician every six months and had myself thoroughly examined under the impression that there might be something wrong with my kidneys. The diagnosis always resulting in the physician claiming these organs were sound, but as the pains existed when I hap- pened to notice in my Janesville pa- pers that Doan's Kidney Pills were guaranteed to cure just such troubles I procured a box at the People's Drug store and took them. Doan's Kidney Pills are a good preparation. My back has not ached since I used them. I have heard others speak very com- plimentary of them and if I did not know their merit and required such a medicine I would consider it a favor if some one suggested their use to me. For this reason I endorse them."

First Showing of Fall Silks.

We are now ready to show new Silks for fall and winter wear. This house has long held a prestige for the immense selections, elegant patterns and splendid quality of its silks. This season's efforts on our part eclipse any previous showing. Early buying from a large market, together with heavy price concessions and discounts have enabled us to show an assortment and quote prices of which we are pardonably proud.

Shirt Waist Silks

Everything in silks for shirt waist suits. These suits are to prevail this winter and we show a variety of goods; over a hundred new weaves, designs and colors.

Plain Silks and Satins

A complete line in new soft finishes. These will be largely used in waists and suits. The line is now ready for you. Lock it over.

Peau de Crepe, Peau de Chine.

Crepe Princess, Peau de Soie,

Miranda Silk, Peau de Chamois,

Crepe de Chine

125 pieces plain and changeable Taffeta Silk for suits and linings

Black Silks

The strongest line we have ever shown. We are exclusive agents for the celebrated silk made by the York Silk Mfg. Co., York, Pa. They make three grades—Moneybak, Diamond and Windsor,—which we show in Taffeta and Peau de Soie. Prices: 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00. These goods are fully guaranteed to give satisfaction and there is nothing better made for the prices asked.

TURN DOWN THE STREET SHOWS

CARNIVAL PROPOSITION NOT FAVORED BY COUNCIL.

MORE TIME FOR INTERURBAN

Southern Wisconsin Company is Given Until March 1 To Accept Franchise and File Bond.

In special session last evening, Aldermen Jackson and Sheridan absent, the city council, again amended section 12 of the ordinance granting a franchise to the Southern Wisconsin Interurban Ry. Co. in such a manner as to allow the promoters until March 1 to file their acceptance thereof and a bond in the penal sum of $10,000 as security for the construction and operation of the same, the restoration of the streets, and any damage that might arise by reason of said construction. Alderman Matheson who introduced the measure said that if any person or persons should appear on the scene between this time and March 1, who in good faith wanted to and could build the line, the present petitioners would retire in his or their favor. He said that he was willing to enter into a contract with the city to this effect. Alderman Matheson had told him that he believed his word would be sufficient.

Action on Carnival
Alderman Matheson asked Mayor Hutchinson what had been done in the matter of a certain carnival company which was seeking to exhibit in this city. His Honor replied that he believed that several business men had gone around with the carnival promoters and secured the consent of the aldermen for the use of the back streets for show purposes. Alderman Merritt then declared that when he was interviewed he was given to understand that the show was not like the one given under the auspices of the Elks in this city and that the streets would not be obstructed in such a manner as to interfere with the work of the fire department. "I am also opposed to their coming here without paying a license," he added. In order to get the matter before the council Alderman Matheson introduced the following Resolution: "By the mayor and common council of the city of Janesville, that if the promoters of this carnival do not permit the city to have the use of the streets for such purposes or for any other enterprise of a similar character, for said month of September, be not granted."

Minus Enlightenment
Alderman Matheson, while he presumed that nothing he could say would change any vote, asked the indulgence of his colleagues in expressing his views on the matter. In the first place he felt that a carnival of this kind was on the whole, demoralizing. It brought into the city an undesirable class of performers and entertainments. Those who visited these entertainments were not enlightened or instructed and the probabilities were that the influence on children would be positively injurious. He had been told that these shows were clean and alright. It might be true, it might be true from the standpoint of the management and not from the speaker's standpoint or those of his hearers. Yet, once they had been allowed to come here, what could be done about it? Some of the business men had said that the carnival would help them. It was the speaker's firm conviction that the most interests would be injured and that the majority of men in legitimate business were opposed to it. Much of the money taken in would be carried out of the city by the promoters. Less would be left in circulation after they had gone. Moreover, the money would have been expended by those who could least afford it.

Streets Already Encumbered
Just at this time the city was not in a position to further encumber its streets. The Court street bridge was closed and the highways were being torn up for sewers. The opinion of the city engineer on proposed further obstructions would be of considerable bearing on the question. The speaker objected to the manner in which those interested went about the matter of securing consent. It was not fair to the members of the council or its Honor. Three or four men, calling on a man in his place of business and naturally placing the project in the best light, secure his consent under certain conditions—as in the case of Alderman Merritt. Then in their enthusiasm, they represent to others, unintentionally perhaps, that they have secured full consent. The way to get at a thing of this kind is in meeting. The matter may then be threshed out to the much wiser and more satisfactory to all concerned. The statement on the part of the show people that they must have an immediate answer was an old proposition—an expedient with which all business men were familiar. Any good thing that is a good thing will keep twenty-four hours. When Barnum's Bally came here, pitching their tent on the outskirts of the city, a license fee of $50 was charged. Yet it was proposed to allow this carnival company to come here, appoint special police, clean up after them, and get nothing in return. $50 a day would not be too much for the privilege if the council were determined to have them here.

Possibility of Damages
In allowing the streets to be obstructed by the tents and platforms, the city laid itself liable to damages. When a coterie of citizens asked for a franchise it was customary to require a bond. So far as the council knew this carnival concern was irresponsible financially and any damages that might result the city in all likelihood would have to pay. He was authorized to say that Chief Hogan advised very strongly against the project. If the speaker could be convinced that it would be for the interest of the city to have this car-

Runs Down a Fraud

A dispatch from Springfield, Ill., appearing in the morning Chicago papers, started Supt. Hemmingsway today. It read as follows:
"A new scheme to defraud was disclosed today when a letter written by County Superintendent of Schools Charles Van Dorn to what was known as the University of Washington, at Washington, D. C., was returned with the endorsement 'fraudulent.' A month or two ago Van Dorn was notified to appoint two young men to free scholarships. The letter said every matriculant was required to pay the usual incidental fee of $20. Now it develops that the concern does not exist and the scheme is to defraud the youths appointed out of the matriculation fee."

Was One Applicant

Mr. Hemmingsway said this morning that he had received just one letter of inquiry regarding the scholarships. It came a few days ago from Miss Grace L. Lane of Beloit. A day or so later Supt. Hemmingsway read in the papers that the Catholic "University of Washington" was badly crippled for lack of funds and thinking that this might be part and parcel of a plan to bolster up a waning institution, he wrote to Miss Lane advising her to proceed carefully. So it is certain that she has sent in no matriculation fee. The institution of "high standing" at Washington, D. C., with which this fake college was confused in the article is the Columbian Law school.

AN OLD RESIDENT CALLED BY DEATH

Charles Sexton Summoned by Death at the Home of His Son Last Evening.

Charles Sexton, an old resident of the city, after five years' confinement pleading to be taken home peacefully, passed away at his final rest at 11:30 last night at the home of his son, H. Sexton, three miles from the city. The deceased was born at Lowville, Lewis county, New York, Oct. 19, 1807, and would have been 97 years old at his next birthday. He came to this city from Watertown, New York, July 14, 1851. His life has been one continuous record of business activity and energy, and he has broken the restraint placed upon him by the infirmities of old age. For forty-five years he was a member of the Baptist church, an earnest worker and willing helper, not alone in his church, but giving as well. Funeral services will be held from Oak Hill cemetery chapel at 3:30 p. m., Sunday.

Louise Blesdale Services over the remains of Louise Blesdale will be held at the grave Sunday afternoon at 3:30 at Oak Hill cemetery. Rev. Denison will officiate.

CARL SCHURZ IS INVITED TO CITY

Concordia Society Urges Eminence German American to Come Here German Day.

Elaborate preparations are being made by the Concordia society for the celebration of German day in October. Music and addresses by noted orators at Assembly hall will be features of the day's program and there is a chance that the eminent German-American, Carl Schurz, who is to deliver an address in St. Louis on Oct. 6, may be persuaded to favor Janesville with a visit. It is known to the city of Wisconsin on his return trip and an urgent invitation has been sent out from this city.

SEWER WORK NOW GOES MERRILY ON

Steam Excavator Renews Operations on South First Street and Dig- gers Begin on Main.

Contractor M. W. Benson having returned from Chicago, and all misunderstandings adjusted, the digging machine was once more put in operation today at the work of excavating South First street from Main street to the river for the temporary outlet for the sanitary sewer, which is also to be used as a permanent storm sewer. The work on the South Main street sewer ditch was commenced yesterday and this will probably be done by hand on account of the many gas and water service pipes. More sewer pipe arrived today.

Concert and Operetta

A concert and operetta will be given next Monday night by St. Mary's church choir at the Myers Grand Opera house. A splendid program has been arranged and the tickets are only 25 cts. This worthy cause should be well patronized.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR THE POUNDMASTER

Everyone is Real Thoughtful and Generous with Their Ideas—Pelts Wouldn't Sell.

Perplexities are increasing for Pound Master Grathol. Everyone seems to have organized himself into a committee of the whole to advise just how things should be done, and offer illuminating suggestions. When Mr. Draebel, inquired of city officials the other day where he was to get his pay for disposing of the carcasses of deceased canines they told him that large money could be procured for the hides at a certain tannery not far from the city hall. When the assorted pelts were presented, the proprietor refused to buy at any price. There are complaints that the food served to the imprisoned canines is not plentiful or palatable. Last night Alderman Matheson stated to the council that complaint as to the manner of execution had come to him. The parties in question objected to condemned dogs being used for police force target practice and demanded that chloroform be used. Alderman Schwartz said that no executions at all would be necessary if people were allowed to take their dogs out or pound without paying fines. Saying this he looked meaningly at one of the city officials who is understood to have sanctioned a seizure a few days ago.

MURRAY IN TOGA OF "HIS HONOR"

Will Be Chief Executive of City During Absence of J. F. Hutchinson.

Mayor J. F. Hutchinson this morning left for San Francisco where he will be one of the Wisconsin delegates at the session of the Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, beginning Sept. 19. He will be absent about three weeks and Alderman Murray, president of the council, will be the acting mayor until he returns.

NEW TROTTING MEET AT LIBERTYVILLE

New Mile Track Attracts Many of the Fastest Horses in the Country.

By Henry D. McKinney
On Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week the new mile track of the Libertyville Trotting association will be opened by a series of trotting and pacing races of a quality that has not been seen in this section of the country for many years past. Some time ago a number of prominent business men of Chicago, admirers of the light harness trotting and pacing horse completed at Libertyville, a station on the Janesville and Southeastern railroad, twenty miles north of Chicago, one of the, if not the, finest mile tracks in the west. All the appointments are strictly first class. The grand stand alone cost thirty thousand dollars and everything is in like proportion. This will give a good idea of the magnitude of the undertaking. Liberal purses of sums ranging from a thousand dollars up to a very high class of ones including among them some of the best horses in the country this year. On Tuesday, the inaugural day, there will be given the 2:18 trot for a $1,000 purse with eleven entries listed, and a 2:25 pace with the same number of entries and a purse of $500 hung up. Wednesday there is the 2:15 pace for a thousand dollars with fifteen entries, the 2:15 trot with nine entries, and the 2:12 pace with eleven entries. Friday will be the last of the meet and will include a free-for-all with ten entries, a 2:24 trot, fifteen entries, and a 2:20 pace with fourteen entries. Aside from these there will be a running race each day. John R. Thompson, is president of the association, J. D. Gridley secretary, and Charles Timble superintendent of speed.

All the appointments are strictly first class. The grand stand alone cost thirty thousand dollars and everything is in like proportion. This will give a good idea of the magnitude of the undertaking. Liberal purses of sums ranging from a thousand dollars up to a very high class of ones including among them some of the best horses in the country this year. On Tuesday, the inaugural day, there will be given the 2:18 trot for a $1,000 purse with eleven entries listed, and a 2:25 pace with the same number of entries and a purse of $500 hung up. Wednesday there is the 2:15 pace for a thousand dollars with fifteen entries, the 2:15 trot with nine entries, and the 2:12 pace with eleven entries. Friday will be the last of the meet and will include a free-for-all with ten entries, a 2:24 trot, fifteen entries, and a 2:20 pace with fourteen entries. Aside from these there will be a running race each day. John R. Thompson, is president of the association, J. D. Gridley secretary, and Charles Timble superintendent of speed.

Jeff Stands Alone.

Bursting of Munroe Bubble Leaves Champion Without a Rival--Gossip.

Champion Jim Jeffries is now more than ever the lion of the pugilistic world.

Foolish people there were who were "taken in" by the magnificent bluff of Miner Jack Munroe. They would read a few columns of Munroe's confident predictions and then would say: "Really this man Munroe must be an eighth wonder of the universe. Too bad for Jeffries, though. Feel sorry that he didn't refuse to meet the Battle miner. It must be three for a champion to realize that he is going to lose his title."

The fateful day came, or, better, the fateful night. What the expert ring followers expected came to pass, and the next number on the programme will be a song entitled "Back, Back, Back to the Cold, Cold Mines" by Mr. Jack Munroe.

But even those who could not see where the mine had a ghost of a show against Jeffries did not believe the champion capable of executing such summary vengeance.

Munroe will stay about five rounds, and that will "let him out," said the most enthusiastic backers of Jeff. The champion, however, had a few ideas of his own on the subject, as the record of the fight well illustrates, and in the middle of the second round Munroe, the mighty miner, resembled a pound and a half of choice steak after a hard hand encounter with a pack of Russian wolf hounds.

Jeffries now occupies a unique position in the fistie realm.

He has no opponents of even half his ability and must now wait patiently for some other newcomer to manure.

"The greatest human fighting machine ever built" is the public's verdict concerning Jeff, and no one can prove anything to the contrary.

The father of Jeffries, by the way, is a minister. Years ago he was well known throughout the west and middle west as an itinerant preacher.

"One of these days," says Jim's father, A. C. Jeffries, "my boy will get licked, and then he will be sorry he ever put on a pair of boxing gloves."

Well, from all appearances, the champion's parent is a very poor guesser. About the only man who will ever defeat Jeff is the man who can carry a two-ton sledge hammer up his sleeve and hand the champion a tap under the ear when he isn't looking.

George McFadden writes that he is going after the lightweight title and is daily training to get in shape with a view of getting a match with Joe Gans.

Young Corbett's Plans.
Young Corbett is forced to remain in ill-health, due to the fact that he has been unable to get any ambitious fighter to meet him. His offers to McGovern and several others have not been accepted, and he must await the pleasure of Jimmy Britt.

The little Denverite has announced that in the future he will be his own manager. He and his former manager, Harry Pollitt, who recently left for Butte with Fitzgerald, have parted company. They are still friends, but have severed their business connections.

The coroner's jury in the case of the fatal collision on the Grand Trunk near Richmond, Que., holds Conductor Atkinson and Engineer Swager of the excursion train responsible.

It's Easier

To Cure Than Endure Pain.

It is needless to suffer pain. It is easier to take a Pain Pill and be cured.

If you will provide yourself with a 250 package of Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills you have the means of preventing attacks of pain, as well as a positive cure.

If you are subject to nervous or sick headaches, neuralgia, backache, menstrual pains, stomach ache, indigestion, nervousness; if you have dizzy spells, sick stomach or headache while traveling; if you are sickened—all that is necessary is to take one of Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills when first symptoms appear, or just before starting out to visit or travel, and they will soothe the irritated nerves, and free you from all these disagreeable affections.

In doing this you take no risks, because they are perfectly harmless, and you will have no other evidence of having taken them than the knowledge that you are free from pain.

They relieve and cure by reinvigorating and allaying the irritation of the nerves, and by stimulating the secretions.

"I am glad to find the relief that comes with the knowledge that I am free from those terrible headaches that I have had all my life. All I have to do when I feel the approach of pain is to take one or two of Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills, and I am free from my suffering in three, six or twelve hours, depending on the case." J. E. CONFESSES TO DYNAMITE PLOT

Former Cripple Creek Miner Gives Names of Alleged Conspirators.

Topeka, Kan., Sept. 10.—"I was with the men who blew up the depot at Independence, Colo., on June 6, thereby killing eleven men, and severely wounding nine others," is the startling confession made to Sheriff Lucas and County Attorney Hunsate by R. H. Singel, alias Robert Tomaine, who was recently arrested here for robbing a residence.

An effort will be made to secure the extradition of Singel. Before this can be brought about it will be necessary that Gov. Bailey grant him a pardon from the Kansas penitentiary. He was given an indeterminate sentence.

Singel mentions Foster, McKinney, Davis, Kennison, Jim Hicks and Carl Nelson, miners, and says they were connected with the explosion, but the officials will not divulge the names of a half dozen others, members of the union, who took a prominent part in the plot to wreck the Independence depot, according to the prisoner.

CHAPTER XVII.

FALLS THE FLAG OF FRANCE.

DE RAMESAY stood in his private office in the shot-racked Chateau St. Louis. From the English batteries at Point Levis the cannons were continually firing upon the already ruined lower town, and even upon the castle itself. From Townsend's intrenchments on the landward side the heavy siege guns which had been landed from the British ships were raining shot and shell upon the upper town and the citadel. Piedmont, the French chief of artillery, was making what reply he could. The fleet of Admiral Saunders in the basin had been moving up toward the lower town during the past week, and as de Ramesay watched them, large boats full of troops were even then being landed on the meadows and flats at the mouth of the St. Charles river and being drawn up in columns under cover of the ships' batteries, as if preparing to approach and storm the gate nearest the bridge.

De Ramesay had just come in from a tour of the walls. It was a hopeless outlook indeed before the governor. He had done his best, but the end was approaching. Sad indeed is the moment when we realize that our best is unavailing. The rations of all had been reduced and reduced until starvation stared them in the face. No part of the town was safe now from the English fire. The very chateau itself in which he stood was riddled with shells. There was a great gaping hole in the roof of his cabinet, through which the rain poured desolately.

The temper of the garrison had grown worse and worse. Nothing whatever had been heard from de Levis. De Ramesay felt that if an assault were delivered it could not be met. His garrison originally consisted of 150 troops of the line, some 400 or 500 colony troops, and the local militia, but had been much reduced by death, wounds and starvation, and was growing less every day. The colonial soldiers and militia had been deserting in handfuls.

Presently Capt. Rouvigny entered. "Monsieur," he said, saluting, "a body of merchants, headed by Monsieur Daine, are here to see you, and—"

"Bid them attend me in the great hall of the chateau, captain," interrupted the governor gloomily, "and summon the officers of my staff. Let some one go for Monsieur Piedmont, if he can be spared from the walls. We need his counsel."

"I omitted to state, monsieur," continued the young officer, "that the merchants are accompanied by the officers of the city militia."

"Let them all come together. I will see them all. I know what it means," said de Ramesay despondently.

A few moments after he entered the great hall of the bullet-ridden castle. Many of the portraits which adorned it had been destroyed by the fire of the enemy. Grim old Frontenac, the unconquerable, however, still kept watch and ward over the territory he had loved, now fast slipping into the hands of the hated English. Had he been in de Vaudreuil's place, thought de Ramesay, they might not now be in such a pass.

Through the broken window-panes the rain beat and the wind swept in mournful harmony with the thoughts of the people who crowded the room. At the lower end were congregated a body of the most influential citizens of the town. Their plain but rich dress, comfortable cloaks, prosperous appearance, proclaimed that they were men of substance and condition. A little apart from them stood the officers of the colonial militia in bedraggled, weather-stained uniforms.

The merchants faced de Ramesay boldly. The eyes of the citizen soldiery sank to the ground, and they looked everywhere but at him. They shifted uneasily under the stern gaze of the veteran commander, while their hands played nervously with their sword-hilts. De Ramesay was attended by the officers of his staff, able soldiers all; some of them were drenched with rain and covered with marks of their exposure to the inclement weather, which showed they had just come from the ramparts. Among them were Rouvigny, St. Luc, Piedmont, and Joannes the town major, and with them de Vitre, still under restraint by de Ramesay's order.

The governor stood at the great table with his officers grouped around him. The merchants and militia officers drifted together at the opposite side. A stranger would have instantly recognized that here were two parties to debate a serious proposition. Sadness was the predominating note in de Ramesay's face; haughty pride and contempt flashed from the eyes of the nobles and professional soldiers at his back; dogged determination was evidenced in every line in the portly figures of the merchants; and stubborn shame spoke from the drooped heads of the militia officers.

"Messieurs," said the governor quietly, "you have asked an audience for a purpose which I can but too well divine. Will you speak your mind and have done with it? The gentlemen of the counter first."

He turned inquiringly to the merchants, but no one apparently cared to break the silence. No one wished to assume the stigma of being the first to make the proposition in furtherance of which they had assembled.

"What, gentlemen!" continued de Ramesay sarcastically, "are your desires so base that none of you have even courage to mention them? Monsieur Daine, it was at your house, I am informed, that the gentlemen held their meeting this morning. Will you speak?"

"Monsieur le Chevalier," stammered Daine, flushing and paling by turns, "we are—we cannot—we do not—in short, we came to beg you to surrender the town."

"Ah!" said the governor, "and why should I give up a charge devolved upon me by his majesty the king?"

"We are starving, monsieur," answered Daine more boldly; "our dwellings, our shops, our warehouses are ruined. We can do no more. If the English break into the town, if they storm the walls, we have over 2,000 women and children here. Think of them, sir!"

"True," said de Ramesay, "but so long as we have arms in our hands the English will not break through the walls. Is it not so, gentlemen?"

"Vive la nouvelle France!"

"Let us die for the flag!"

"Vive le roi!"

"Death to the English!" broke in confused exclamations from the little group of officers behind the chevalier. The others were silent.

"How is it that I hear no response to my appeal from the officers of the militia?" continued the governor.

"Gentlemen, do you allow your brothers of the regular army to outdo you in patriotism?"

"By God, sir!" ripped out one of the leading officers of the militia, "we cannot fight any more, and there's an end to it! Our men are deserting by hundreds, and we are hungry! We have had nothing to eat since last night, nothing to drink either! 'Tis all keeping guard and fighting on nothing!"

The English are there in thousands curse them! We cannot keep them out. My men won't fight any longer!"

"Nor mine!"

"Nor mine!" rang through the hall.

"And you, monsieur, has your stomach for fight also left you?" asked de Ramesay, frowning upon the man.

"Yes, it has!" snapped out the officer furiously. "Tis a hopeless contest, the city is lost!"

"Yes, yes, he is right!"

"Surrender!"

"Give up the town!"

"We are lost!" cried one after another.

There was no doubt either of their unanimity or of their determination.

"You cowards!" exclaimed the governor bitterly, turning upon them with a withering glance of contempt. His calmness gone, he stamped his foot in passionate scorn and anger.

In the midst of the confusion, which well indicated the disorganization in the town, an officer burst into the hall and shouldered his way through the struggling mob toward the governor. The crowd became silent as they recognized his presence and instinctively felt that he had news of importance. His face was grave with anxiety.

"Monsieur," he cried, saluting, "the English are about to storm the St. Charles gate! Monsieur le Gardien, who commands there, has sent me to say that the town troops have thrown down their arms and have refused to fight! He has no force to stay the advance. For God's sake, send reinforcements, or we are lost!"

Even as he spoke another officer came running into the room from the walls on the other side.

"Monsieur le Gouverneur," he cried, as he entered the apartment, "the colonial troops have withdrawn from the walls! Capt. Le Moyne says that the English battalions are mustering for an immediate attack. He has not enough regulars to man the guns! He must have reinforcements immediately, and the men are hungry!"

"Is there an ounce of bread left?" asked the governor, turning to the quartermaster, "to feed the soldiers who are faithful and these cattle?"

"Nothing, sir," answered that functionary sadly, "the last ration was issued last night."

"You see, sir," cried the merchant, "to what straits we are reduced! My children cry for bread!"

"My wife suffers with hunger; we are ruined!" cried another.

"My soldiers starve!" exclaimed a third.

"Gentlemen," said the unfortunate chevalier, turning to the militia, "you have some influence with your men surely! Return to them, beg them to fight one more day! Monsieur de Levis will surely succor us. Upon us depends the fortune of New France. When we strike the flag we give up a province, an empire! For God's sake, messieurs, for the king, for your own lands, once more to the walls! Vive la nouvelle France!"

The militia officers stood in gloomy silence in the face of this appeal. The feeble exclamations of the loyal officers of the line were drowned by a dreadful crashing sound followed by a detonating explosion, which hurled the people in the room in every direction. A shell from the batteries burst in the hall.

"Sauve qui peut!" cried one in the smoke.

"We have no safety anywhere!"

"Strike the flag!"

"Fly, fly, messieurs!"

The room was filled with men, dead, wounded and stunned. Groans, curses, shrieks resounded. Scarcely knowing what had happened, the governor, de Vitre, and the rest, blinded, dazed, and choking, found themselves swept out of the chateau to the terrace in front of it overlooking the river. From the tall staff above them floated the white flag of France. There was an excited group of men around it. Two or three eager hands clutched at the halliards. Slowly, as if with reluctance, the proud banner came drooping down to the earth.

De Vitre, Rouvigny, Joannes, Piedmont and two or three others with drawn swords ran into the midst of the mob, driving back the townspeople and the officers. With eager hands they strove to hoist the flag, but the halliards had been cut and they could only lift it in their hands a little space above the sodden ground. As they realized the effort, their antagonists swept down upon them again. The governor's spirit was unabated, but his resolution at this gave way. He succumbed to the inevitable.

"Let be!" he cried, breaking his sword and throwing the pieces far from him. "The flag is down. Be it remembered that it was not my hand that struck it! You cowards, you have your way! It is the end of New France."

"STRIKE THE FLAG."

He stood, with the tears trickling down his rugged old face, a picture of shame and sorrow.

One by one the big guns that ringed the city ceased to pour their shot upon the town, as the English saw the flag come down. Although the heavy smoke still hung low in the sodden air, a silence ominous and gloomy for the Frenchmen succeeded the roar of the cannonade. The ships in the harbor were soon black with men. From the meadows on the Plains of Abraham the sound of cheering could be heard faintly, and down by the St. Charles gate, where the columns of the English were massed, came back an echo of the joyful sound. It was the death-knell of the province.

Maj. Joannes, reluctantly complying, while bitterly protesting, was dispatched with a white flag to Gen. Townsend's headquarters. With the cessation of the bombardment the townspeople, regardless of the rain, poured into the streets. The plateau in front of the chateau was soon filled with people shouting, gesticulating, laughing, crying, sobbing like mad. The grim old governor, with the officers about him, stood at the foot of the flagstaff looking over that marvelous prospect which should never again belong to France. Presently Joannes returned.

"The terms, major?" cried the governor.

"The garrison to march out with the honors of war, with their arms, two pieces of cannon, and 20 rounds; afterward to be transported to France with such of the townspeople as choose to go with them. The free exercise of our religion permitted and the rights and property of the people respected."

"And the alternative, monsieur?"

"Immediate attack."

"Have you the paper?"

"Within my breast, sir," answered Joannes.

"Let us go to the chateau; we will sign it."

Presently the two reappeared on the terrace.

"Say to the English that the people are starving, and ask them in the name of the women and children to send us something to eat at once," said the governor.

Joannes saluted, turned away, and was gone. The people watched him disappear in silence.

CHAPTER XVIII.

THE PLAY, THE STAKE, AND THE PLAYERS.

MEANWHILE, what of the Countess Anne and Capt. Grafton? They had passed through a week of such mingled emotions, such alternations of joy and sorrow, of love and jealousy, of remembrances and anticipation, as could scarcely be described.

When the woman he loved left him alone the night he recognized her, after that rapturous exchange of kisses, Grafton felt himself transported to Heaven. He forgot, in the happiness consequent upon his discovery of her identity, the racial antagonism which should lie between them; he forgot the great gulf of war which held them asunder; he even forgot the engagement of Anne to de Vitre. But the next morning, when the first glow of his passion had left him, he was enabled to view things in a clearer light.

He carefully took account of the different obstacles which separated, or might tend to separate, him from the woman he loved. He intended to win her, come what might, and as the campaign was like to prove a difficult one, in which the odds were mainly against him, it behooved him to take stock of all opposition and carefully look over the field. He must think, he must plan, he must leave no stone unturned, lose no point in the

First of all he was an American, and that was different from an Englishman. Anne, although she showed little of it to a casual inspection, was an American as well. That was a point gained. The war, he believed, would presently be over. That was another point in his favor. If she loved him—if she loved him! Who could doubt it after last night? But did she love him enough to brave the anger and defy the opposition of her grandfather? Did she love him enough to marry him in despite of country, nationality, public opinion? He thought so.

She had great pride of race, and from the French point of view she would be condescending infinitely in marrying a mere commoner. For the matter of that, he thought, in his loving humility, that no man was fit to possess this priceless jewel of womanhood. He placed her upon a level so high that she would have been compelled to condescend to marry even a king, much less a simple American gentleman. Marriage with him meant for her the renunciation of title, rank, station, possessions, country, family, friends, traditions—he piled up the catalogue of sacrifices involved, in gloomy, ever-deepening humility. Still, other women had done such things; these were not insuperable obstacles.

The last difficulty was the greatest. There was de Vitre—a stumbling-block, indeed. No man could have done more for another than he had done for the young Frenchman. He had twice saved his life, he had established his honor, and, by a singularly ironic trick of fate, he feared he had been the means of bestowing upon him the hand of the woman they both loved.

His own sense of the obligation he had conferred upon that young Frenchman lay heavily upon his soul. He could not demand from him freely or even take from him by force what he would have wrenched cheerfully from another. A benefit conferred, however

It may be considered by the recipient as a benefit forgot, invariably establishes a sense of obligation on him who confers it. Therefore, de Vitre was an obstacle of the most serious moment to the future progress of his happiness. How to contend with him he knew not. Certainly he could not make the relinquishment of the Frenchman's desire for Anne the price, or the reward, of his own past services. A genuine man, he could not even bear to have these services mentioned; and that they so persistently remained in his thoughts gave him honorable uneasiness. A very exalted and chivalric nature had Philip Grafton. He was particularly nice on the point of honor.

That was not all either, for connected with de Vitre was the honor of the de Rohans. Anne, in the most public manner and of her own free will, had betrothed herself to the young Frenchman. She had voluntarily entered upon the relationship and assumed the obligation. Her sense of honor was not less keen than his. She was a woman, he remembered, imbued with all the traditions of that race whose proud boast it was that while they had not been born to the kindly degree and they would not condescend to the princely rank, yet they were Rohans. Was Anne capable of sacrificing her word for her love? It was doubtful.

WOMAN SHOTS TRAMP WHO RANSACKS HOUSE

Promises to Secure Key to Trunk, Returns With Revolver and Ends Life of Intruder Who Beat Her.

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Mrs. Charles Neblington killed an unknown tramp who tried to rob her farmhouse near Clark's Mills.

The woman, who was alone, locked the doors, but the unknown visitor climbed through a window and began to ransack the house. The tramp found a trunk and when Mrs. Neblington refused to hand over the key he knocked her down and pounded her. The woman finally promised to get the key and the tramp let her rise. She returned with a revolver.

The tramp saw the weapon and darted through the window by which he entered. Mrs. Neblington leveled the revolver and fired, and as the man rushed out of the yard she saw him lift one hand to his head and hold it there as he continued down the road.

Word came from Clark's Mills that the man had been found dead at the roadside a few miles from the farm. There was a bullet hole in his head.

Mrs. Neblington is a frail woman about 38 years of age.

TRAIN RUNS INTO A CARRYALL

Grand Trunk Special Injures Five Persons at South Bend.

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 10.—A transfer carryall, carrying passengers from the Vandalla station to the Oliver hotel, was struck and demolished by a Grand Trunk special train at 7:25 o'clock Friday night. Every man except the driver and a companion on the front seat was injured, but with one exception all will recover. The train was carrying officials of the Lehigh Valley railroad and was running ahead of the local passenger due here at 7:30 p. m. The train was running at a moderate rate of speed and because of this a more serious accident was averted.

WARNED OF DEATH IN A DREAM

Gallen (Mich.) Woman and Her Sister Killed by Train.

Laporte, Ind., Sept. 10.—Mrs. B. S. Dywater of this city has a letter written by her sister, Mrs. George Chase of Gallen, Mich., in which the latter was warned in a dream of her own death. The day following the receipt of the letter by Mrs. Dywater, Mrs. Chase and another sister were struck by a Michigan Central train at Gallen and instantly killed. The dream revealed that Mrs. Chase was to meet the fate which befell her.

IN AN ANTARCTIC SQUALL.

Not a Pleasant Experience with the Temperature at 72 Degrees of Frost.

Suddenly the mist lifted, and the temperature, which generally rose during a gale, by this time had fallen to 72 degrees of frost. The first squall brought drift snow, and we suffered greatly from frost bites, while securing our little camp, writes C. E. Borchgrevink, in "Antarctic Experiences," in Century. Our reindeer sleeping bags, which, while warm from previous use, had been packed on the sledge, where they became quite flat and frozen hard, so that when the gale surprised us we had to thaw ourselves gradually into the bags. Later on we used the dogs to thaw out the bags for us. They always liked to roll upon anything that was not snow or ice, even were it but a thrown away mitten; and they would turn round and round over it, imagining that they were warmer there than on the snow. When later we threw our frozen bags on the snow, the dogs generally clustered together on them at once, and soon after we could get into them.

By this time the gale was over us in earnest, and we took refuge in our sleeping bags in the tent, from which we were not able to extricate ourselves for the next three nights and days, in which time we expected the icy floor beneath us to break up at any moment. Our silk tent rapidly filled up with a dense fog, both from our breath and from the heat given out by the lantern; a thick layer of frost soon covered the inner walls of the tent, and beautiful snow crystals shone down on us through the ventilation hole in the bag. The drift snow buried the tent, and the snow pressure left us just enough space for our sleeping bags. The dark little spot which we formed on those vast white fields was blotted out. Men, dogs and sledges all disappeared, and the antarctic gale as it raged over us found nothing but cold white solitude.

For three nights and three days we had to take turns in standing on all fours to prevent being smothered by the pressure of the snow. From time to time the Laps joined in melancholy native hymns, the monotony of which seemed in a remarkable degree to harmonize with the rage of the blizzard over our heads. We had brought a small aluminum cooking stove with us into the tent, and with difficulty we prepared a warm meal. But in the cold the metal stuck to our fingers, and it was not pleasant to have one's turn at cooking. We roasted the heart of a seal, but other parts we ate raw. The dogs were completely snowed under. Some of them had eaten the straps of their harness in order to free themselves; but they were still unable to move, being frozen to the ice.

SATURN'S SATELLITE.

Its Discovery in 1899 Has Only of Late Received Authentic Confirmation.

One of the most interesting recent astronomical discoveries is that of Phoebe, the ninth satellite of Saturn, announced in 1899 by Prof. William H. Pickering, as having been found on photographs made at the Harvard university observatory, at Arequipa, in Peru. The data, says Youth's Companion, were not then sufficient to furnish a satisfactory determination of her orbit.

Confirmation of the discovery has been long delayed, probably because the planet has been crossing the region of the milky way, where stars are so numerous that its verification would be difficult. Naturally astronomers had become somewhat skeptical as to Phoebe's real existence, suspecting that some mistake might have been made in interpreting faint spots on the photographs.

But complete confirmation comes at last in a Harvard bulletin just issued, stating that the satellite has been found again upon numerous Arquipa plates, 11 of which, made in and since last April, furnish the elements for a reasonably accurate prediction of its position.

The calculation of the orbit is well in hand, and the results will be given in a volume of the Harvard "Annals."

soon to appear. The satellite is extremely small, probably too faint to be seen through any existing telescope, but we can photograph what cannot be seen.

As to its orbit, all that can be said at present is that the distance from the planet must be between 7,500,000 and 8,000,000 miles, and the period of revolution about 17 months. For further and more precise information we must await the finished computations.

Of the six satellites discovered during the last century all but the satellite Neptune were found by American astronomers—the seventh satellite of Saturn by Bond in 1849; the two satellites of Mars by Hull in 1877; Jupiter's satellite by Barnard in 1892; and now Phoebe.

Had Made a Change.

"Isn't there something in my policy," asked a caller at an insurance office the other day, "about my 'having to report any change of residence?'"

"Yes, sir," said the man at the nearest desk, picking up a pen. "Where have you moved to?"

"I haven't moved anywhere," rejoined the caller. "I have made a change in my residence by painting it a light straw color and putting a chimney pot on the kitchen chimney. I think that's all. Good day!"—Stray Stories.

HOW IT HAPPENED

On September first I was ready to turn my business over to my successors. Through a misunderstanding they did not produce the money and, as a consequence the stock is now thrown back on my hands. I am now trying to sell it to other parties and while negotiations are pending my rent and other expenses are going on.

My lease on my present location expires Thursday, Sept. 15th, and until then I will continue the sale of musical merchandise at ruinous prices. It is a grand opportunity to buy high grade goods at practically your own price. I want to quit and attend to other business which is suffering badly from lack of attention.

Until the stock is exhausted or the deal closed with my successors the following prices will prevail:

Take Exercise Daily.

The first thing needed to keep the tissues healthy and strong and the various organs in good working order is a certain amount of exercise every day. Regularly taken exercise strengthens the heart, thereby causing that great organ to pump the fluids of the body to the remotest corners and thereby improving nutrition and causing all the other organs to do their natural work and to take a delight, so to speak, in doing their natural work.
